Stay Tuned! Wassup everyone? I am Ray, the proud new owner of PhotoshopCity and hope to be able to accomplish some cool and exciting things here within the next few months or so. I have been a professional photographer for more than 20 years working as a photojournalist and have used photoshop since the days we installed it from a single floppy disk on our Macintosh computers. Yeah... that's been a while ago. Through the years I have picked up some of the basics and can get around Photoshop enough to properly tone my photographs. But this only touches the surface of the capabilities of what Adobe Photoshop can do for your images and artwork. I am hoping that through this website that we will all be able to learn some new exciting techniques and increase our knowledge with this powerful software and which we all will hopefully benefit from by boosting our careers or adding to the passion of our love for this hobby. In the meantime, why not register today and be ready to add some creativity to your work?
